

prohibition of information gathering and proliferation of personal information.

We consider the following aspects to be of primary importance in the sphere of private life of person:

- the immunity of the residence or other legal possessions;
- the secrecy of personal information on the person's health and physical development;
- the secrecy of domestic relations;
- the secrecy of communication with other people.

The concept of private life is a specific part of the life of a person that includes different relations and events that have no public meaning. This concept is defined and regulated according to social conditions. The immunity of residence and the immunity of private life are connected. That's why the immunity of the residence includes the prohibition of invasion up the residence, prohibition to showdown facts of private life. There are the objective criteria in the sphere of private life – prohibition of interference of the state bodies, and the subjective criteria – every person can define the ambits of personal information and private life.
