The concept of Emergency Preparedness Management (Civil Defense, Civil Protection) emerged in Europe in the early 1980s and followed the establishment of two parallel initiatives in France and Italy dealing with disaster mitigation. Both countries, responding to social concern over the devastating potential of catastrophic events, initiated a highly beneficial period of cooperation. As early as 1980, France established the Plan d'Exposition aux Risques, a national programme to assess the geophysical environment and map natural and man-made hazards, examining the level of risk they posed to the public. In Italy, three groups of the National Research Council were given the task of assessing the level of risk posed by floods, landslides, volcanic activity and earthquakes, and of developing technical policies for risk mitigation. In both countries it was clear that the exposure to risks was very high, especially in urban areas.

Variant 1

I. Translate the following text into Ukrainian and put questions to the underlined sentence.

Even the most carefully planned project can run into trouble. No matter how well you plan, your project can always encounter unexpected problems. Team members get sick or quit, resources that you were depending on turn out to be unavailable, even the weather can throw you for a loop (e.g., a snowstorm). So does that mean that you're helpless against unknown problems? No! You can use risk planning to identify potential problems that could cause trouble for your project, analyze how likely they are to occur, take action to prevent the risks you can avoid, and minimize the ones that you can't.

II. Answer the following questions:

1. What do you know about Code of EPM of Ukraine?
